

The American International School of Lome (AISL), founded in 1967, is a private, nonprofit, coeducational day school offering a fully accredited educational program from nursery to grade 12. AISL is a learning community that delivers instructions based on an American curriculum aligned with standards and benchmarks. The American International School of Lome celebrates every child and staff member regardless of race, religion, sexual orientation or nationality. AISL follows a United States academic calendar. The school year is comprised of four quarters (two semesters) and extends from approximately last August to the second week of June.
